

Rede im ungarischen Parlament in Budapest

26. August 2023, Nicolas A. Rimoldi

My brothers in arms,

I am deeply honoured to have been given the opportunity to speak in the Hungarian parliament.

It is an especially emotional occasion for me, being the grandchild of one of the brave patriots who, in the year of the Lord 1956, took up arms in this very city to defend his beloved homeland.

A special thanks to Mi Hazánk for inviting me.

The hour is late.

We are standing at the edge of extinction. A fact you must be keenly aware of. Because otherwise you would not be here. We are facing the annihilation of our nations, our values, our traditions and our culture. We are facing the annihilation of the very essence of what it means to be human. Of what it means to lead a dignified existence in safety and security. We constitute the last stand. And just as division makes us weaker, unity will make us stronger. That is why we need to build an alliance. Not in a month, not in a week, not tomorrow...but now.

At the dawn of the Battle of Mohi (Mohács), Louis the Second famously said "God knows where we will eat lunch". Today we might ask the same question, facing the uncertainty that lies ahead of us. And in order to face that uncertainty, an alliance of sovereign people from all over Europe is now needed more than ever. Decent people from Hungary,

Switzerland, Sweden, Bulgaria, the Netherlands and many other countries need to join hands to defend our identity against the globalists, who wish to take away our rights and our sovereignty.

Through international treaties like the WHO pandemic pact, migration pact and many more, they intend to steal our fundamental human right to independence and self-governance piece by piece. Treaties which we from MASS-VOLL! will fight tooth and nail once we are elected to the Swiss National Council. An endeavour we are pursuing while I am speaking to you.

Corona, migration, climate, wokeism. These agendas are but placeholders for one and the same thing. Fear. Because fearful people are more likely to give up their rights and put up much less resistance. Fearful people are more willing to toss away the privileges for which their ancestors fought, while hoping that the empty promises of self-declared experts will deliver salvation. A promise that has been made on many occasions in the past and always failed. With disastrous consequences.

The hour is late, my friends. But it is not too late to stop the globalists.

To preserve what we hold dear, not only for ourselves, but for generations yet to come. For our children and their children. To save our nations, our families and the future of this great place called Europe. I say to you all. Pay the highest price and endure every hardship. Give all you have...and then give some more. Sacrifice everything...and then sacrifice some more.

And in the end we will prevail.

Because we must prevail.

We will save Europe.

Because we must save Europe.
